

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image pickup apparatus, which is a device for recording an image file on a recording medium according to a file system having a plurality of directories including attributes associated with a photographing position of image data and a photographer, detects the photographing position of a photographed image data and the photographer and records the image file on the directory of the attributes corresponding to the detected photographing position and the photographer from among said plurality of directories.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176